

Chris Davis

Chris Davis is a father of two children, ages nine and six, and resides in Oceanside, California. Chris is a wrestling coach for The Vista High School Panthers, where he also teaches math.

Chris first came into contact with Community-Associated MRSA in 2006 when a number of wrestlers on his team contracted MRSA infections. During this time, Chris' daughter, who was five-years-old, also contracted a MRSA infection while sick with chickenpox. At first, Chris and his team of coaches were baffled as more and more of their wrestlers developed MRSA infections. Eventually, after implementing vigilant cleaning and disinfecting practices with his team, they were able to stop the spread of MRSA.

While Chris and his team are now healthy, he is dedicated to educating others, especially athletes, about how to help prevent MRSA.